Tips and Tricks to Navigate Remote Learning

November 16, 2020

Quotes about Remote Learning from Parents, Students, and Educators

Mother of a 6th grader:

“A beautiful part of the Remote Learning is that as a mom I am able to see my child’s learning styles, and speak to the teachers regularly about my child’s needs, supports, and progress.”

Dad of a 2nd grader :

“I like when I get home from work that I am able to look at what the teacher taught my child . I like seeing videos posted, and comments that I can follow to make my child do better.”

Quotes about Remote Learning from Parents, Students, and Educators

6th grade middle school student :

“I like Remote Learning because you don’t have to get dressed, walk to school, and you just have to log on.”

3rd grade student:

“I miss seeing my friends everyday. I go to school 2 days a week and I wish I had more time in the school .I miss going to the cafeteria, running in the gym, school assemblies, and all the other fun stuff. Coronavirus took lives and also took away fun.”

Quotes about Remote Learning from Parents, Students, and Educators

5th grade parent :

“ At first I HATED Remote Learning because I did not go to school for teaching. Now- I’m starting to learn more about my own child , and how she learns. We are both learning a lot. “

Kindergarten student

“I like eating breakfast home , but I wish I could see my teacher more. My mommy says maybe next year I can go to school. It will be safer. I’m home safe .”

What parents need to know about Blended/Remote Learning now:

- Make sure you have registered for your child's myschools account, this account will provide you with information regarding your child's attendance, grades and school offers.

<https://www.myschools.nyc/en/account/log-in/>

- Keep a notebook for passwords for the different platforms your child uses
- Use the Google Classroom calendar to keep track of assignments and their due date(s)

What Parents Need to Know about Blended/Remote Learning Now:

- Have your child's schedule posted in a central location so the family has access to it
- Visit Teach Hub - its a location with a lot of resources for students and teachers
- Please be aware of the schools grading policy and the Remote Learning revisions

- As of now, there is only one opt-in window which ended on November 15, 2020. Parents can opt to go fully remote at any time.

What parents need to know about blended/remote learning now:

- Make sure you know how to submit/turn in your child's work and sometimes that means refreshing your child's page
- If your child wants to revise work, please know that you must un-submit it first to be able to make revisions.
- You need to know the teacher's policy for turning in late work. Make sure you email the teacher in a timely manner if your child needs an extension on any work

What parents need to know about blended/remote learning now:

- All student work and workbooks should be available in digital form
- No child can be penalized (fail) for not having access to technology and internet
- If your child is still in need of technology, send your request directly to the school

Tips for parents during Remote Learning

REMEMBER... You play a huge role in helping your child succeed! Here are some ways you can help support your child's education:

- Communicate with your child's teacher regularly
- Connect with other parents
- Create Routines to help your child focus
- Create a consistent space to learn (workspace)
- Praise your child for their efforts not just their grades
- Reduce distractions
- Make time to have fun and play with Your child
- Remember self care matters - for you and your child

Social-Emotional Learning and Mental Health

Students have been physically isolated from their school communities, their teachers, their friends and have had very few supports to help them process these traumatic events. Social-emotional learning is critical to the overall health of students and their ability to learn. Guidance Counselors can be a great resource for parents .

Students with any services....

Please ensure you speak with your child's Service Provider, Assistant Principal, and/or Principal if you have any questions. It is imperative you stay informed, engaged, and empowered.

Remember... you are your child's strongest advocate .
